ATHLETICS WIN BALL PENNANT

Earnshaw started well. In prime form he fanned Doubtfit first man up, caused Adams to tap a weak one to Foxx, and then fanned Watkins for three out.

Dykes got a great hand when he came out to bat. The fans expected something from him, but Wild Bill wasn't having any. Dykes strolled, then Cochrane knocked a neat two baser to right field and scored Dykes while he personally landed on third. Watkins scored an error on this play, having allowed the ball to roll through him.

Foxx got a big hand for his winning homer of Monday, and he too earned a walk. Then Miller doubled to centre and Cochrane romped home. It was an auspicious start for the Athletics.

In the second Bodtorsky scored his ninth strike out of the series. Sunny Jim looked worried as he walked back to the dugout.

BISHOP HIT BY BALL

Wild Bill Hallahan registered his second strike out of the game by fanning his rival Earnshaw. Then he smacked Bishop on the arm and gave him a base. The Athletics centre fielder got to second when Wilson let a ball get away, and Dykes got his second walk. There was no score, however.

Gelbert was cheered by his home state folks. He comes from Pennsylvania. He lived to regret it.

Fisher was sent in to bat for Hallahan and made a two base hit to centre.

Grove was sent out to warm up for Earnshaw's relief as the innings ended.

JOHNSON PITCHES

Sylvester Johnson went in to pitch for the Cards as the Athletics came out in the second half of the third. And Simmons took advantage of the cold pitcher to drive out a home run. After Foxx died to Frisch, the latter making a brilliant run into right field for the catch, Miller drove out his second two-base hit of the game. Johnson by that time had enough. He fanned Grove and Joe Boley a brief pop fly to end the inning.

In the fourth Connie Mack switched Simmons into left field and moved Haas to centre. Frisch got a single with two men down, but Hafey filed to Haas and ended the innings.

Earnshaw having struck out four and allowed only two hits up to this time, got a great ovation from the fans as he came to bat in the fourth. He struck out, however, for the second time swinging wildly.

Then Bishop got a walk, and Dykes also walked twice previously, rising heavily for a home run, scoring two more for the home team.

FRISCH'S STAR PLAY

A real massacre was averted when Frankie Frisch knocked down Cochrane's hot one, fell down and threw to first fast enough to trap the Athletic batter safe. The crowd cheered the play noisily.

In the fifth Foxx drove a hot one which stung Frankie Frisch and earned out to centre field for a two-baser. It took Miller's sacrifice bunt and Haas' sacrifice fly to score him and bring Athletics total to six.

Manager Street sent Blades in to bat for Johnson in the sixth but Earnshaw fooled him with three fast ones. Douthitt sent a foul fly to Cochrane and then High went in to bat for Adams, but he got nowhere, when Earnshaw did a kangaroo leap and got the ball in his gloved hand and threw quickly to Foxx.

When the Cards took the field, High was posted at third base.

ANOTHER PITCHER

Another switch in pitchers in the sixth failed to help the harassed Cards manager. Lindsey replaced Johnson. Earnshaw was disposed of with a fly to Hafey when Bishop got a walk. Dykes who got a big hand on coming to bat, earned his praise with a two bagger to centre. Cochrane's sacrifice fly scored him. The innings ended with seven for Athletics and nil for Cards.

It looked like a wake-up for the Cards in the "lucky seventh" Watkins and Frisch got out easily. Then Hafey hit to left field for two bases, and Bottomley got a walk. But the margin was too slender. With two out and two men on, Wilson fouled to Cochrane and the opportunity passed.

ORSATTI'S TOUGH LUCK

Young Ernest Orsatti, given his first chance in the series, being sent in in the eighth to bat for Lindsey, ran into a bit of bad luck, from his standpoint. He drove a hot one toward Foxx who made a brilliant stop and beat the runner to the bag.

Douthitt too, got no breaks. Boley made a fast play that drew cheers from the crowd and ended the inning.

'Oo's Somebody's Baby' On Hotel Radio Fails To Impress Dr. Glover

Dr. T. H. Glover philosopher, logician, and Fellow and Classical Lecturer of St. John's College, Cambridge, raised bushy eyebrows in sudden horror, inclined his head slightly, and glared over the top of his gold-rimmed spectacles at the radio in the Hotel Vancouver.

It is a good radio, but not all Dr. Glover's philosophy and logic could induce a sympathetic response to a broadcast gramophone record which appeared to be declaiming "Oo's Somebody's Baby, Oo Is."

He shuddered. A look of longing for the peacefulness of the Cambridge colleges crept into his eyes, but subsided under a weight of growing vexation.

The orator and lecturer, who is speaking here this week, faced the stern reality of the voice of the lovelorn singer, delivered an apostrophe.

"Stop it," he said. "Your noise is out of place in this room. You are more fitted to a bar. Begone."

An unknown well-wisher switched off the radio. Calmness returned to the steel-grey eyes of Dr. Glover.

PONY GOLF' EPHEMERAL

"Now where was I when that infernal thing interrupted," searched Dr. Glover, the eminent authority on Church History of the Early Christian Centuries, who is lecturing on the abstruse problem of the Roman Empire and kindred subjects in Vancouver, at the University of British Columbia and elsewhere.

"Where was I? Oh, yes! No pony golf or miniature golf or what d'you call it, wee golf. It is just a craze, don't you agree?"

Dr. Glover mused on the early history of miniature golf.

"Once a short while ago there were none in the United States. Then there were hundreds in a fortnight. A craze.

"Oh, by the way, I don't know whether I should say that . . . well, then mind. The eyes twinkled. But it struck me yesterday there was no point in being in England because Vancouver is so English. Of course, I'm very Canadian because I'm always coming out here, as often as I can. Do you know Bristol, he suddenly asked.

"Then you should meet Mr Taylor of Bristol, said Dr. Glover decisively.

Mr. Taylor was found looking out at Vancouver's rain dispiritingly.

"He knows Bristol. Dr. Glover's tone was one of hopeful encouragement. It was effective. Mr. Taylor beamed and did not look at the rain.

BRISTOL NOTABLE

Mr. Taylor is head of J. F. Taylor's store, the Hudson's Bay store of the ancient port of Bristol, and ex-sheriff of the city. The interviewer recalled that once Mr. Taylor had been standing enough to invigile him to a mannequin parade where he sat, the jolly difficient man among a thousand women. Certain dainty articles of feminine wearing apparel had caused the women to go into ecstasies and the man to go into a state of nerves.

Mr. Taylor blushed still more and found a chuckle hidden away in his business mind.

"Well embarrassing for you, said Dr. Glover. "It seems amazing recall some lines. But there no point, perhaps.

Mr. Taylor relapsed into despair as they both took another look at the weather.

POLICY SCORED BY MACKENZIE

party in the British parliament than from the statesman for another Dominion.

"It is a direct invitation to the people of Britain to express no confidence in their government. It is no part of the duty of statesmen of one member of the British Commonwealth of Nations to interfere in the politics of another. We should certainly resent any such action by a British spokesman in Canada.

"Another striking feature of the language used is that Mr. Bennett has apparently adopted a cold-blooded attitude of 'take it or leave it'. The passages quoted in the press leave no room for compromise or conciliation. That is not the way negotiations within the family should be conducted in my opinion."

WOULD BOOST COST OF LIVING

"Another characteristic of the proposal that impresses me is that is founded in the old Tory beliefs that there is intrinsic merit in the mere height of a tariff. Mr Bennett's whole proposal is based on increases in existing tariffs and in the creation of tariffs where there are none. It would mean a pronounced increase in the cost of commodities and, hence in the cost of living and the cost of production in every part of the Empire.

POLICY OF BARGAINING

"It also implies direct bargaining between individual members of the Empire and the Mother Country. There has been a pronounced public opinion against such bargains on the ground that a preference granted to one dominion would necessitate elimination against another. This it has been claimed would be disruptive of friendly relations within the Empire."

AGED MAN VICTIM OF ESCAPING GAS

Victim of escaping gas Patrick Walters, 70, was found dead lying on the bed in his room at 400 Princess Avenue shortly after 6 o'clock this morning.

Victor Johnson, also residing at 400 Princess Avenue, smelled gas coming from Walters' room and investigated. Opening the door which was unlocked, he found Walters lying across the bed partly dressed.

Officers found a gas jet partly opened and indications that a 25 cent meter had exhausted its output. Death is believed accidental and took place several hours before the tragedy was discovered.

Walters registered at the rooming house three weeks ago and is believed to have come here from Portland, Ontario.

ACCIDENTS DECREASED

Accidents in shops and in departments where machinery is used have practically ceased throughout the Canadian National Railways system, said A. O. Beck, chief of first aid and accident prevention, on his arrival in Vancouver from Montreal. The decrease in the number of accidents is ascribed to first aid and preventive classes, which are conducted regularly among the employees.

The last resolution presented by Burnaby recommending improvement of Hastings-Barnet Road between North Road and Clark Street, Port Moody, was carried.

Cards as the Athletics batted in the eighth. Earnshaw got the fans on their feet yelling hoarsely as he drove a long fly to centre but Douthitt garned counter cheers with his fine running catch. No runs.

In the final spasm the Cardinals managed to score a lone tally to save a shut-out but their belated rally gave them no chance for the championship.

High first man up, got a single to right field. Then Watkins walked. Frisch lined to Foxx and Watkins was doubled at first unassisted. Then High scored on Hafey's two-base hit to left. But that was all.

Two Gunmen Rob Japanese Merchant

Verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury at the inquest Tuesday afternoon into the fatal injury of Herbert Hagstrom, brakeman, at Britannia Mines. Oct. 3.
