Opinion of Coroner Investigation shows that this man had suffered from a very high hypertension and due to this and his excitement had another cerebral haemorrhage. It was first reported that he had fallen down the stairs and had met with some injury but this is incorrect. Uyeda had served in the 49th Battalion, Regimental #253055 during the Great War and was a War Pensioner. He has no known relations in this country. Death was due to natural causes, namely cerebral haemorrhage, due to rupture cerebral artery with hypertension.

REMARKS:

on the left side. He was forced to use crutches since. At 12 noon he had lunch with Mrs. Yamabi and later while reading the newspaper became very excitable and upset over the news he was reading. He left and evidently went to his room and was later found lying on his bed in an unconscious condition. Dr. M. Uchida was called and immediately sent him to Shaughnessy Military Hospital.
