

Diarrhea.

We arrived at the Hastings Park Manning Pool at 8 A. M. and were instructed to sleep in the Horse Show Building. The first thing we noticed was the fond smell emanating from the stable. We were provided a horse stall with a double bunk and two blankets. The flooring was covered with dirty boards and upon having it removed we found it crawling with germs which festered from the manure. The odour adhered to our clothing so it was noticed by many people with whom we came in contact.

There was no adequate heating facilities when we arrived, and it was not till a month later that the heating system was provided. Unsanitary conditions prevailed in the girls' washroom, and the family found no prevention from the rest of the occupants.

In many cases worms were found in the food which brought about many cases of diarrhea.
