

The Sun

THE NEWS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA AND CANADA PUBLISHED EVERY WEEKDAY BY THE HARRAD PUBLICATIONS COMPANY LIMITED

HEAD OFFICE: 51-53 Rogers Street, Vancouver, B. C., Canada. DIRECTOR: F. C. Wade, C. E. President

EDITOR: J. P. Patterson, Vice-President. ASSISTANT EDITORS: J. H. G. Gibb, John W. Gibb, J. F. M. Reid, Editor

CORRESPONDENTS: B. C. Editor: J. P. Patterson, Vancouver; F. C. Editor: J. H. G. Gibb, Victoria; P. E. Editor: J. F. M. Reid, Regina

ADVERTISING: All advertising copy should be sent to the Manager, The Sun, 51-53 Rogers Street, Vancouver, B. C., Canada.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY HARRAD PUBLICATIONS COMPANY LIMITED, 51-53 ROGERS STREET, VANCOUVER, B. C., CANADA.

Subscription Rates: Single Copies, 5c; Monthly, $1.25; Quarterly, $3.75; Six Months, $7.00; Yearly, $12.00. Payment in Advance.

Branch Offices: Seattle, Wash., 211 West Broadway; Portland, Ore., 1000 Broadway; San Francisco, 1234 Market St.

Telephone Numbers: Vancouver, 1234; Seattle, 5678; Portland, 9012; San Francisco, 3456.

Copyright, 1912, by The Sun Publishing Co. All rights reserved.

Monday, November 25, 1912

Mr. Monk's Logic

The latest statement by the Canadian public are gravely asked to credit it as the word of a man who has resigned from the Borden cabinet.

When the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The ground for attacking this Imperial policy was that he took no part in the recent election in Hochelaga, and that, in reply to the manager of the Hochelaga paper, he wrote that he was not a member of the cabinet.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The public will surely probably in vain for any evidence in this connection by Mr. Monk that he is favorable to Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

We may be quite satisfied that the politician who broke away from his party, while it was still in opposition, to unite with a faction, in Quebec, hostile not only to any measure of assistance to the Imperial navy, but even to British consular agents, by every means of slander, calumny, and unscrupulous tactics, is not worthy of the position.

We are assured by the government newspapers that in resigning from the cabinet, Mr. Monk was not making a statement of principle, but was merely resigning to take his place in the opposition.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

In the circumstances the government candidate was absolutely assured of election, as Mr. Monk would not fail to realize. The whole attitude of Mr. Monk and Mr. Bourassa was intended to assist Mr. Coedre, and it succeeded in that respect.

It is simply trifling with the public to ask them to accept such a statement, for the effect on the newspapers, for they are obliged by the government of the authorities to capture the Indian market.

And that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money, to bring these refugees desperadoes to justice.

But a police officer is not to be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money.

And how does the department of the government hope to get these desperadoes to justice? By making the public that it is so.

But a police officer is not to be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money.

Which of course is the very object of the government, and that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government.

The point of the government apologists is that if the provincial police force captured several other bad and vicious criminals, though they were the perpetrators of a few more of these crimes, would not be so much to the credit of the provincial police.

And how does the department of the government hope to get these desperadoes to justice? By making the public that it is so.

Which of course is the very object of the government, and that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The ground for attacking this Imperial policy was that he took no part in the recent election in Hochelaga, and that, in reply to the manager of the Hochelaga paper, he wrote that he was not a member of the cabinet.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The public will surely probably in vain for any evidence in this connection by Mr. Monk that he is favorable to Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

We may be quite satisfied that the politician who broke away from his party, while it was still in opposition, to unite with a faction, in Quebec, hostile not only to any measure of assistance to the Imperial navy, but even to British consular agents, by every means of slander, calumny, and unscrupulous tactics, is not worthy of the position.

We are assured by the government newspapers that in resigning from the cabinet, Mr. Monk was not making a statement of principle, but was merely resigning to take his place in the opposition.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

That kind of language comes with very bad grace from an employee of a company which, in common with other corporations, has failed to contribute to the requirements demanded by the season's crop.

The Home Rule Measure Even among the rank and file of the Liberal members of the imperial parliament the prevailing view is that the retention of forty-two Irish representatives in the British House of Commons was not a whole to insist on its measure by the party as a whole to accept its terms.

And that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money, to bring these refugees desperadoes to justice.

Which of course is the very object of the government, and that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The ground for attacking this Imperial policy was that he took no part in the recent election in Hochelaga, and that, in reply to the manager of the Hochelaga paper, he wrote that he was not a member of the cabinet.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The public will surely probably in vain for any evidence in this connection by Mr. Monk that he is favorable to Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

We may be quite satisfied that the politician who broke away from his party, while it was still in opposition, to unite with a faction, in Quebec, hostile not only to any measure of assistance to the Imperial navy, but even to British consular agents, by every means of slander, calumny, and unscrupulous tactics, is not worthy of the position.

We are assured by the government newspapers that in resigning from the cabinet, Mr. Monk was not making a statement of principle, but was merely resigning to take his place in the opposition.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Letters from House of Commons

By H. F. Gadsby

(Continued from Saturday)

It is the determination of the Aquatic League to make most of the same duties to be done exactly the same kind of provisions to Ireland as the Royal Northwest Mounted Police in the Western Canada. Nor is it much appreciated in Ireland.

And that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money, to bring these refugees desperadoes to justice.

Which of course is the very object of the government, and that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The ground for attacking this Imperial policy was that he took no part in the recent election in Hochelaga, and that, in reply to the manager of the Hochelaga paper, he wrote that he was not a member of the cabinet.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The public will surely probably in vain for any evidence in this connection by Mr. Monk that he is favorable to Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

We may be quite satisfied that the politician who broke away from his party, while it was still in opposition, to unite with a faction, in Quebec, hostile not only to any measure of assistance to the Imperial navy, but even to British consular agents, by every means of slander, calumny, and unscrupulous tactics, is not worthy of the position.

We are assured by the government newspapers that in resigning from the cabinet, Mr. Monk was not making a statement of principle, but was merely resigning to take his place in the opposition.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

to our members. The engineer says it is to conserve the water supply. It is not to conserve the water supply, but to conserve the water supply.

And that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government, after spending thousands of dollars of public money, to bring these refugees desperadoes to justice.

Which of course is the very object of the government, and that is all the defence that can be made for the ineffectual efforts of the various general department of the government.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The ground for attacking this Imperial policy was that he took no part in the recent election in Hochelaga, and that, in reply to the manager of the Hochelaga paper, he wrote that he was not a member of the cabinet.

And when the Hon. F. D. Monk, who recently resigned from the Borden cabinet, is in favor of Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

The public will surely probably in vain for any evidence in this connection by Mr. Monk that he is favorable to Canadian assistance to the Imperial navy.

We may be quite satisfied that the politician who broke away from his party, while it was still in opposition, to unite with a faction, in Quebec, hostile not only to any measure of assistance to the Imperial navy, but even to British consular agents, by every means of slander, calumny, and unscrupulous tactics, is not worthy of the position.

We are assured by the government newspapers that in resigning from the cabinet, Mr. Monk was not making a statement of principle, but was merely resigning to take his place in the opposition.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

Not only does Mr. Monk not interfere in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles, but he also does not assist in the Hochelaga election to serve his principles.

In the Law Courts

WEEK'S TRIAL LIST

- Supreme Court Cases Still Proceedings: Peadar vs. Beveland, Becker vs. Beveland, McCowen vs. Peoples Trust, Page Lumbar vs. Fullerton, Hogg vs. Hogg, etc.

Correspondence

The Water Supply: To the Editor of The Sun: I believe that the city engineer is wrong in his estimate of the water supply. It is not to conserve the water supply, but to conserve the water supply.