CONGRESS OF INDIANS UNLAWFUL

Drastic Action Taken by Gov't: Rain Stops Riot

By Associated Press

KARACHI, India, June 23.—Effigies of members of the Simon commission and officers who presided at the Abbottabad court martial were burned publicly here.

By JAMES P. HOWE,
A. P. Staff Correspondent

BOMBAY, June 23.—Rain came to the assistance of the authorities yesterday, and prevented the holding of a meeting planned by the Bombay Provincial Congress in sympathy with 17 members of the Shiphaldi Garwali Rifles who were imprisoned for disobeying orders in a riot at Peshawar.

An order issued by the Madras Government declared the Andhra Provincial Congress Committee an unlawful association within the meaning of the criminal law amendment. Similarly, in Guntur district in West and East Krishna, in West Godavari and in the town of Bezwada, the war councils have been declared unlawful.

DRASTIC ACTION

Congressional leaders see in the move, together with the action of the Bombay magistrates in prohibiting drills and processions, indications of a general tightening up of regulations against Swarajists throughout the country. Leaders said they believed that with Madras taking the initiative, similar action was likely to be taken in Bombay, Bengal and the Punjab.

PROTEST SENT TO QUEEN

LONDON, June 23.—Bombay despatches to the Daily Herald report wives and daughters of Indians holding British titles have decided to send a telegram of protest to Queen Mary against suppression of the Nationalist parade on the Maidan Esplanade Saturday.

The Swarajists estimated that 15,000 persons were in the demonstration. Police estimate only 100 injured, and say that most of those were hurt by bumping into each other in the mix-up.

ANTI-CRIME SESSION OPEN

Delegates to Police Convention Welcomed

"If the Anglo-Saxon race stands together there will be no war," said Mayor W. H. Malkin in his address of welcome at the opening of the tenth International Anti-Crime Conference under auspices of the Northwest Association of Sheriffs and Police, at the Hotel Vancouver this morning.

The mayor's remarks followed the flag service, in which the British and American flags were together carried into the convention chamber.

A letter of good wishes from President H. Hoover of the United States was read.

Ald. H. J. DeGraves and Police Commissioner David Hall officially welcomed the delegates.

A civic luncheon was tendered to the delegates at noon.

The convention opened Sunday night with a police parade to the Capitol theatre. An inspiration followed.

The convention will end Wednesday.

CHAPTER TWO Continued

No, most of 'em can't afford lawyers. Rotten bunch, the gang that goes through police court in the morning. Rotten. Bootleggers, drunks, and women, well, women who ain't. Ya, you straight-forward eyes you got. Ladies of the evening's a gentle name for 'em. Then there's the others, bums—no accounts. They ain't a pretty bunch, either. After they've been sleeping on these cots all night. And they're going to sown mighty strange to you.

"How do you know I'm different?" Sue asked, her body snuggled down comfortably under the blankets.

The girl went on rubbing Sue's ankles gently, her red head bobbing up and down with the exertion.

"AW, I KNOW"

"Aw, know, kid. I seen too many bad girls in my day not to know a good one. You're one of these little flappers. I know you all. Thinkin' you're so smart, so wise in the ways of the world, and down at heart you're scared stiff at everything. Puttin's your stock in trade. Playin' with fire, but never gettin' burnt is your idea of life. It may be all right as an idea, but listen to me, kid, it ain't in the cards to play with fire and not get singed. It ain't."

"I don't pet."

"But you think the world's just made for your little garden—"

"I don't—"

"You do or you wouldn't be in here for reckless driving," she spoke bitterly.

"I couldn't help it," Sue explained lamely.

I AIN'T SCOLDING

"Yes, you could. I ain't scolding you. You're not to blame. Sure, you're too young, too decent to be in here. What you having for?"

"I—"

"I bawled, too, the first night I spent in the coop. How you goin' to get out of this mess?"

"I don't know—" Before, Sue had always had her father to fall back on. Now she was by her self. On her own.

"Well, you'll get a nice lot of publicity, see if you don't."

"No!" Sue lifted tear-wet eyes.

"Sure."

Such mind conjured up terrible things. Her father . . . that last time she had had her name in the papers, he was furious.

LOATHED NOTORIETY

Nice girls, good girls took care, he had lectured, that their pictures and names stayed out of the daily press. Henry Allan loathed notoriety. Since when ten years ago reporters had called about the death of his son in France, he had refused to give them the information they wanted. A man's sorrow was his own, not the world's, was his comment at the time.

Now this.

She forgot for a moment that her father was through with her, had sent her out of his home, never to return.

When she remembered it was with despair.

"Sure," the other girl went on, "with that face of yours, and you appeared in 9 o'clock in a crowded court room in a party dress—say the newspaper guys will eat you up. Why, your picture will be all over the country, maybe."

"They can't take my picture if I refuse to pose—"

"Don't be funny. They're hard-boiled, these newspaper guys. You don't know what they'll do. The papers, they just thrive on girls like you. Your face'll be on the front page tomorrow. Pretty reading. Can't you see it? Society girl spends night in cell!"

"I'm not a society girl—"

"It don't matter. Deep it if you want to. Won't do no good. You look like a society girl—"

Sue turned over on the cot.

"You got a family?"

"Yes. Father told me to get out—tonight when the officer brought me in. This would—make him ill she more angry—"

"Never mind, kid. I'll see you through. You just get a few hours know the ropes. I been in before—lots."

Sue smiled up at the girl, hopefully. She closed her eyes, when she remembered the extra blankets. "You've better have your blanket."

"No, you'll need it. I'm not tired anyway. I'll just take a smoke and wait until morning." She drew a cigarette from a crumpled package, lighted it and sat down on her cot.

Wisps of smoke drifted to Sue as she fell asleep, curling around her restless dreams.

JAPAN PRINCE URGES AMITY

Co-operation With Canada Desire of Japanese

"Co-operation and mutual understanding are particularly desirable between Canada and Japan," Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, President of the Japanese House of Peers, told members of the Japan Society of Vancouver at a private dinner Saturday to celebrate his first arrival in Canada.

"The direct diplomatic intercourse which has just been instituted between our two countries offers eloquent testimony to the increasing importance of our relations," the Prince declared.

He concluded by congratulating the Japan Society upon the work it is doing to further trans-Pacific friendship, and assured the members of his whole-hearted support at all times.

Those at the banquet were Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, Hon. Jyemasa Tokugawa; his son, S. Mano, member of the House of Peers; Y. Seko, secretary of the House of Peers; S. Yodo, consul here for Japan; Major-General W. H. Malkin, Chief Justice A. Morrison, R. H. Baird, president of the Japan Society; K. A. McLennan, Sherwood Lett, T. Norriake, Dean W. R. Brock, K. J. Burns, port superintendent; F. H. Clendenning, J. H. Hamilton, H. R. McMillan, Col. Nelson Spencer and J. S. Morrison.

LEAKY WATER MAIN CURTAILS SUPPLY

NEW WESTMINSTER, June 23.—Alderman John Peck, water committee chairman, reported during a special meeting of the City Council today that waterworks employees made an unsuccessful attempt to repair a leak, 12 by 8 inches, in a 48-inch B.C.E.R. Co. portion of the main at Coquitlam Lake Sunday morning.

Queens Park reservoir was emptied by three-quarters of its supply. The supply was renewed this morning.

He further reported that a meeting will be held before the end of June when representatives of Coquitlam Municipal Council, the City Council, Provincial Government and Greater Vancouver District Water Board will consider proposals to guarantee a continuous supply of water to the Mental Hospital at Essondale.

Three miles of city mains are criticized by the Provincial Government water engineer. It is contended that this section is open to the effects of Coquitlam River flooding.

Application of Vancouver City Council to the Federal Government for an inquiry into the price of flour and seed in Western Canada cities was endorsed.

Minister Jumps To Death in 'Y' Hotel at Chicago

CHICAGO, June 23.—Rev. Clarence E. Singleton, Baptist minister of Faribault, Minn., jumped to his death last night from the thirteenth floor fire escape landing of the Y.M.C.A. hotel.

Notes in Singleton's room indicated he had been brooding over some undisclosed problem of conduct.

PRESIDENT MAY REVISE TARIFF

Hoover to Kill Boost in Duty on Lumber

By Canadian Press

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill now being a matter of history, Washington is wondering to see how President Hoover is going to use the flexible provision to rectify matters.

It is not improbable something may be done about cattle, lumber, maple sugar or boots and shoes.

The duty on soft wood lumber, which affects the producers of British Columbia was a highly controversial matter in the Senate.

It is suggested the transfer of lumber from the free list was the price of some votes for the whole tariff bill.

The keeping out of Canadian lumber, particularly out of line with President Hoover's conservation program and if the tariff commission could find basis for a reduction of the duty it would probably be made.

Run of Sockeye Best in Years

PRINCE RUPERT, June 23.—Fishermen arriving in Prince Rupert today said the Skeena River run on the Claude and Nass Rivers is heavier than has been known at the opening of the season for many years.

During the eighteen hours from the opening of the season at midnight Thursday until the start of the week-end close season last evening, one boat on the Skeena River took 124 fish while the average was eighty per boat.

On the Nass River the high boat had also about 120 fish while the average is stated to have been around ninety.

SERVICES WITHOUT ORGAN

A burned out motor on Saturday afternoon put the organ at Christ Church out of commission for the Sunday services. The fire is thought to have been caused by a short circuit.

GIVERNY, France, June 23.—Rupprecht, Crown Prince of Hallen Republicans, died Sunday in Paris in exile imposed by Premier Mussolini. He was aged 57.
