

EXCLUSIVE BUS FRANCHISE GRANTED TORY

DISCRIMINATION IS DAMAGING C.N.R.

Equal Rights for 2 Railroads Is Demanded

By Sun Staff Correspondent
 VICTORIA, Feb. 14.—Bitter denunciation of the granting of exclusive bus franchise to a political party on Vancouver Island was uttered by T. D. Pattullo, Opposition Leader, during his attack on the Pointe Grey committee report in the Legislature, Friday.

When the Highways Act had been amended last year Hon. N. E. Leitch had announced the issue he did not intend to grant exclusive franchises.

Yet on Vancouver Island a complete monopoly of the public highways had been granted to one company owned by a party supporter, who also owned the leading Conservative paper on the island.

This partisan had then sold his franchise to the C.N.R., which was now able to arrange its schedule as to coincide with the selling times of C.P.R. boats to the detriment of the C.N.R.

Meanwhile the Conservative publisher was printing violent abuse of the C.N.R. for extravagance in entering the coastal steamship field.

EQUAL RIGHTS
 Mr. Pattullo held that the C.N.R. should have equal rights with the C.P.R. and that the entry of the C.N.R. into the field was in the public interest as likely to stimulate new tourist business.

Mr. Leitch denied that the C.P.R. bus franchise created a monopoly, but Mr. Pattullo read from the order-in-council showing that it specifically guaranteed that no other franchisees would be granted on those highways.

The order was not signed by my friend, but by another minister," said Mr. Pattullo. "Presumably he was away at the time, and is not familiar with the terms."

Burnaby Engineer Killed Near Trail

POLICE PROBE TO BE HELD

 Taylor had promised Commissioner A. G. Weeks that the McLaughlin case would not be discussed if he was absent, and it had not been known until noon yesterday that Weeks was down. Weeks had been granted leave of absence.

BLAME
 The chief admitted after the meeting that he does not know what he is going to do.

McLaughlin is also enjoying a leave of absence which the chief granted after the former had asked to be applied for reinstatement to the Commission.

The former deputy-sergeant did not put in an application yesterday but was told by the chief that he had been dropped from the list.

SCORNS MAGISTRATE
 Recalling that McLaughlin was president of the union after the present Commission was appointed by the mayor, the chief said that he looked rather bad when the chief was in a hurry to swear in McLaughlin in the book by Magistrate H. C. Shaw's house late one afternoon.

He also scorns Magistrate Shaw, because, he contended, "he had no business swearing the man in without authority from the Police Commission."

The suggestion that the city solicitor might be consulted to help the chief was made by Mayor Taylor, who declared the chief has the right to do as he pleases.

"We can have the chief coming to my office," he said with sarcasm. "I will see to it that he is not here, though," McLean rejoined. He said it was purely a question of law.

"FOR THE PRESENT"
 "I perfectly understand the thing all right," he maintained. (He was the original motion-conductor.)

McLean produced a copy of the minutes of the meeting and said he did not clearly state what matters the chief was to report back upon.

The motion said that the chief was to report back on the appointment of the chief to the position of chief of police.

"SOMEONE OUGHT TO MOVE"
 His words and McLean couldn't find McLean's meaning in the resolution. Chief Kingman joined them.

"There was doubt in my mind," he admitted. "I asked the officer to stand down until you arrived at a decision." He said part of the test was the result of conversations had with commission members after the meeting.

McLean: "Some one ought to move the motion." "There's nothing before us," he said. "There's nothing before us," he said. "There's nothing before us," he said.

 tal, felt that he owed to the doctor a debt of gratitude which could never be repaid.

An ironic twist in the course of circumstance again brought Harry James and Ng Kou Jinn into the life of Dr. Brydson's patient.

But the scene was vastly different. Yesterday Dr. Brydson, with delicate shroud of a knife. He was the one who had been killed.

The little boy, covered three years ago, was returning from school last Wednesday to his home at 873 Keefer street. Crossing Keefer Street near Yuma Drive, he was railroad tracks, and a Harbor Commission yard engine, driving 35 box cars, was cutting across Keefer Street as the youngsters approached.

When he said: "When is gone," he put his hand before his eyes. He was asked to get up, and he was asked to get up, and he was asked to get up.

 reserves are not included in this calculation.

Naturally, this formula favors conscription as against standing armies. But it is not reasonable for the latter that it is to prefer formations of conscripts to the former to the latter.

LIMITATION BY TONNAGE
 After having determined the nature of the process of limitation for most power, the commission's project sought to reduce the amount of war material as well.

The commission adopted the commission formula proposed in 1927 by the French delegation and adopted the same for the British and the American delegations.

The total tonnage of war material to be limited is to be determined by the five principal classes of war craft, the application of this formula, transfers of tonnage from one class to another would be authorized.

NO LIMIT ON GUNS
 The size of land forces would be limited by national budgetary expenses. On this point, specialists will undoubtedly encounter difficulties in the detailed specification of these limitations.

It is a defect that may even be called a contradiction. Why, may we ask, was there no limitation on the number of ships and tanks, as there was on airplanes and dirigibles?

The members of the commission would say the real limit is budgetary expense.

The whole question, it seems to me, should be thoroughly discussed in the project before final form.
