

The new Orange-CRUSH invigorates as well as refreshes.

It contains as much energy as the edible portion of two ripe oranges.

The Orange-CRUSH cold process is the secret of its vitamin value. Cooking orange juice to preserve it destroys the vitamins. The orange juice in Orange-CRUSH is fresh and UNCOOKED.

PHONE LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED

Smoke From Bush Reveals Lulu Island Tragedy

NEW WESTMINSTER, June 22.—Electrocuted by 2200 volts the body of C. M. Steinbach, 40, repairman for the B. C. Telephone Company, was found on Swan Avenue, Lulu Island, 5 p.m. Monday.

Steinbach was repairing a phone wire hanging from a pole. The wire, which had come in contact with a high tension B. C. Electric wire, struck two blocks away, acted as a capacitor.

First intimation of the fatality was given by Mrs. M. Cummins, 1144 Swan Avenue who noticed smoke rising from the bush. She went over with a pail of water and noticed Steinbach lying on the ground.

Dr. Cameron McEwen, accompanied by Detective Jack Allen, Motorcycle Officer H. W. Mazon and members of the fire department with a pull motor, rushed to the scene of the accident for two without avail.

Steinbach was working without shoes when the fraying of his left hand were badly burned.

His body was removed to Paqueton Funeral Parlors, where an inquest will be held at 1:30 p.m. today by Dr. E. H. McEwen, coroner.

Born in Indiana, deceased was employed by the B. C. Telephone Co. for the past five years. He came to B.C. in 1925, and besides his regular work at 741 Armstrong Avenue, city, is survived by two daughters, Eugene, Ruth; three sons, George, Glen and Ralph, a six-months-old baby.

Deceased also leaves a mother, three sisters, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Stueber in Kentucky, and Mrs. O. Griffith in Saskatchewan.

NATION OF FUTURE VISIONED BY FORD

Factories and Farms to Be Scattered Over Country

DETROIT, Mich., June 22.—Henry Ford visions the nation of the future—the perfect industrial state—as a nation made up of factories surrounded by farms able to sustain them.

The farm communities will supply the factories with carrots, cantaloupes, corn, wheat and other agricultural products from which automobiles, building material, clothing and the necessities of life—with food an incidental product—will be turned out.

Great industrial centres no longer will be necessary, Mr. Ford thinks, since the factories and farms will be brought to remote sections, with modern transportation the intermediary.

Farmers, in the perfect industrial state as he hopes to see it, will be able to produce to aid in production there, or the factory labor may go to the farms during the reaping seasons.

Turning with renewed vigor to the farms which he has established here, Mr. Ford said that agriculture and industry must interlock. Henry Ford today is embarking an experiment to prove Mr. Ford's contention that agricultural products may be taken care of into something other than food.

"Raising our living is not much of a job," Mr. Ford said, "but I want to raise it, it is products that are raised by industry. If we could raise this problem, industry would give the farm the market it needs, and the farm would give industry the employment it needs."
