

Woman Welder's Case to Go Before 'Labor Jury'

The Sun's New Serial Story Frantic Weekend By Edmund Fancott

Myra Mack had spent two days on the lake shore near Montreal. It was not a pleasant thought to be facing the city hot and humid, the office, stuffy and bristling with Monday problems, after a cool, idyllic weekend.

There was not a cloud in the calm, distant blueness of the sky above and the day already promised heat. Some of the men dressed for the conventions of office work were beginning to show signs of discomfort—an awkward tie, a wilted collar, crases in summer suits already failing.

Myra Mack's critical gaze checked each flawless detail of the other girls' appearance with the cool calculation of any shrewd woman appraising an asset. The pattern, the casual pose were perfect with a touch of sex. With no consciousness of exposure, she glanced at the face of the man who looked particularly attractive.

Myra Mack's critical gaze checked each flawless detail of the other girls' appearance with the cool calculation of any shrewd woman appraising an asset. The pattern, the casual pose were perfect with a touch of sex. With no consciousness of exposure, she glanced at the face of the man who looked particularly attractive.

"Look at those lips," said the soldier as though he had known Myra all his life. "I am pressing her thoughts aloud that she spoke her admiration."

"That," said Myra, "is something to be proud of. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work."

"You've said it!" There was such fervor in the male voice that Myra reached for the same intensity in the soldier's eyes, and found it there.

"Look at the eyes," he said in a low voice. "I am looking," said Myra. "She has a face like that. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work."

"Sunny" Want Ads Says: "I am looking," said Myra. "She has a face like that. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work."

"PAINT-UP and CLEAN-UP" "I am looking," said Myra. "She has a face like that. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work."

"I am looking," said Myra. "She has a face like that. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work. It's a soldier's job to be proud of his work."

City Girl Carries Off Top Honors

Highest honor the Vancouver General Hospital School of Nursing can give a graduating student goes this year to a Vancouver girl—Mary Florence Dunfield.

Miss Dunfield will be presented with the R. K. McKee-Kennedy medal for general proficiency at the hospital's graduation exercises in King Edward High School auditorium at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

Sixty-six young nurses will receive their diplomas. To nine of them will go special awards. Miss Dunfield and Gertrude Marie Rollo, winner of the Alison Cumming medal for highest standing in medical nursing, are the only two city girls among the prize winners.

Dr. J. M. Ewing will give the address to the graduating class at tonight's ceremonies, which will be presided over by Norman C. Gill, chairman of the hospital's board of directors.

Annual Rotary Parley Opens Here Sunday

More than 1000 delegates from 34 states in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Alaska and British Columbia will register at Hotel Vancouver Sunday for the 25th Annual Rotary Conference.

Registrations will get underway on Sunday morning and will continue through the day. At 8:15 p.m. the opening gun of the three-day conference will be fired by Mayor J. W. Cornett.

Plywood Workers Refer Dispute to Labor Department

Employees of British Columbia Plywood Association voted Thursday afternoon to refer their dispute with the company management to the provincial Labor Department for conciliation.

The dispute arose over company action in laying off the graveyard shift on the grounds that a shortage of peeler logs was available.

Junior Board Men to Aid Red Cross Drive

Thirty members of the Vancouver Junior Board of Trade will distribute posters and placards in the city as part of the Red Cross campaign which opens here Monday.

PRIZE-WINNING GRADUATES OF GENERAL HOSPITAL

MARY DUNFIELD General Proficiency

ELVA CRANNA Diseases of the Eye

EFFIE SWANSON Surgical Nursing

GERTRUDE ROLLO Medical Nursing

DOREEN JAMESON Nursing in Obstetrics

ELEANOR KULAK Bedside Nursing

MARGARET GILCHRIST Bedside Nursing

HARRIET BROOK Post-Graduate Study

ROSA FLETCHER Post-Graduate Study

Board Denies Okanagan Jap Permit Charge

Only Japanese permitted by the B.C. Security Commission to go to the Okanagan in five are members of families who have long been residents in the valley.

First Fines For Breaking New Speed Law

TRAFFIC May 8—In the first conviction in British Columbia under new Dominion regulations setting the speed limit at 40 miles an hour, John L. Atkinson of Castlegar was fined the minimum of $15 and costs when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. L. Hodges.

Windsor, Ont., May 8—Eight of four motorists in drive in Canada was suspended for two weeks by Magistrate D. M. Brock in city police court yesterday as he invoked for the first time the stiff penalties of the new 40 miles speed limit.

Junior Board to Aid Salvage Drive

The Red Cross has sent out an SOS. From Mrs. E. R. Sugartman, director of the salvage department, a call has been sent out to the Junior Board of Trade to ask their assistance in the collection of salvage.

Landlord Asks for Ejection, Court Suggests Rent Be Cut

Instead of granting a landlord's application to eject his tenant, Judge Boyd suggested that the tenant apply for a reduction in rent until the front steps are replaced. Also, he allowed the tenant $20 costs for his appearance in court.

Union to Vote On Her Status Tuesday Night

Members of Boilermakers' Union, Local No. 2, will meet in Victoria Tuesday night to bring in their own verdict on the case of Mrs. Ethel Harvey.

Mrs. Harvey, 28 states that Archibald Clyde, union boss agent told her this week that in the year past he had kindled a disingenuous controversy over the place of women in war industry.

Clyde's answer was that she would quit if her employers asked her to—but not until. Operators of the shipyard said they had no intention of asking her to quit.

By so doing, she would be violating regulations of the contract between the union and the yard concerning the status of women in the yard concerned," he said.

There was no sex discrimination in the stand against Mrs. Harvey, the secretary insisted. The chief objection is that as a woman she isn't strong enough to settle in the welder's job, and would probably be required to continue at her present rating of welder helper.

T. J. Kearney, City Undertaker, Dies

Thomas James Kearney, well known Vancouver director of a pioneer in Vancouver since 1914 of Thursday evening at his residence, 8038 Hudson Street.

He leaves his wife, four daughters, Mrs. E. W. Brooks, Mrs. W. J. Young and Miss Jeanie Kearney of Peterborough, Ont.

Chamber of Commerce Leader Here Saturday

Clinton Henderson, chairman of the executive of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce with headquarters in Montreal, is due in Vancouver Saturday morning with Don L. Morrell, acting secretary.

BIRTHS and MARRIAGES

BIRTHS: (Name withheld) and wife, 1101 Linn St., Vancouver, Gen'l Hospital, Thursday, May 7, 1942, a son, 10 lbs. 12 oz., 5 1/2 inches long. Mother and daughter fine.

Marine 1161 SUN WANT ADS

Continued on Page 16