He's Going to Have Head Examined—When Dead

I spent a dozen years studying Hitler at close range. It seemed to me that this man could be measured best by his little vanities and habits.

UNBALANCED MIND

Quite frankly, he always repel-led me personally, though I had to admit the brilliance of his mind and the shrewdness of his showmanship and psychology. I would like to think—as Goering once did—that he is crazy, but that would be to evade understanding or analyzing him.

There is nothing that illustrates Hifter's tremendous ego-ism better than his so-called engle's nest, a large glassed-in room built on top of the Kehl-stein, tower-like rock formation 1800 feet high in the Bavarian Mountain's Mountains,

The Kehlstein can be reached The Kehlstein can be reached only by an elevator in a shaft bored 1800 feet through the mountain. It was a tremendous task at which the bullers qualled until Hitler sald that, cost what it might, the shaft must be bored. It was, but at whe cost of the lives of 12 workers.

FUNERAL PLANS

Hitter's political testament is locked away in one of the great safety chambers of the Kehlstein, with state papers of particular importance and the secret records of the New party. of the Nazi party. His testament makes these provisions:

1. If Hitler dies as a civilian, he shall be buried in this tower-ing stone monument, over Berchtesgaden.

2. If Hitler dies as a soldier (which would presumably mean failure of his military conquest) then he shall be buried on the field of battle.

The Kehlstein is equipped with powerful radio transmitter and receiver. Thirty feet above the lower entrance to the shaft are dynamite chambers for blowing up the elevator and the strong rooms where the important docu-

Hitler has no doubt that his own brain will be of greatest clentific interest after his death. But there are other opinions less flattering to the Fuehrer.

WOTAN'S HAND

Even Goering was unnerved by one of Hitler's conferences at the Kehlstein in January, 1939, when Rehistein in January, 1939, when a few leaders were called to hear Hitler's plans for destroying Poland. Leaving the meeting Goering got into the elevator with a close friend and said:
"You would think he had gone mad; these plans would be the beginning of the end."

beginning of the end."

But Hitler later was proved correct. And thus faith grew in the legend of Wotan's hand. The legend is based on a plece of rock, naturally shaped to form a hand. It was found on the mountain during construction of the Kehlstein. It is about the size of a human hand and Hitler regards, it as symbolic of the power and favor of the old Germanic god. The hand has been mounted and is always on the table in Hitler's room.

There is a German physician

There is a German physician of international repute who be-lieves that some day Hitler will have a serious brain disturbance This physician has treated Hitler since 1921.

It is his opinion that Hitler is an outstanding example of a half-trained and half-educated person with a phenomenal talent for absorbing and co-ordinating information and detail gleaned from other sources.

TWO OF NEW, CANADIAN STAMPS

Here are two of the new Canadian postage stamps shortly to be issued. Every one of the new series emphasizes Canada's part in the war. The top one here depicts the contribution of smaller shipyards in building Royal Canada'an Navy and merchant vessels. It shows a corvette ready to be launched. The lower stamp is one that will probably be heavily used. It is the air mail-special delivery. It dramatizes the speedling up of wartime production by swift transfer of documents, plans and orders. Air-mail business in Canada is up fifty percent from pre-war times.
